Distribution of general merchandise in the Central West and Northwest is further checked owing to the prolonged drouth in Kentucky, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota and the Da-kotas. Telegraphic advices to Bradstreet's report serious damage in Kansas and parts of Nebraska and Iowa, where early planted wheat is up, but that planted later is not likely to sprout. Fall plowing is now impossible. Six weeks without rain have dried up pastures and compelled farmers to feed stock. Manufacturing industries throughout the West, particularly iron and steel, continue active, and there is an increasing tendency on the part of the in-terior merchants to remit promptly. Nonh was found in the rear of the Metro-politan hotel by a policeman Thursday night, unconscious from the effects of mor-phine, and died an hour later in the surphine, and died an hour later in the sur-geon's room at Central station. Noah was one of the oldest citizens of Daviess county and had lived six miles southwest of Galla-tin for thirty-five years. He owned a farm and was well-to-do. He had been justice of the peace and filled many other township offices in Liberty township. He was mar-ried and had several grown children. He was a hard drinker.

A WOMAN'S LETTER.

Concerning Dr. Hartman's Free Treat ment for Women.

I received your book on Gynaecology and commenced the use of your medicine at once. I took five bottles of Pe-ru-na and two of Man-a-lin. I feel like a new woman. When I commenced taking Pe-ru-na I could hardly walk across my room; now I am doing my own work, can walk a mile and a half to church. I shall never cease to thank you for prescribing for me. I had been under the treatment of two doctors, but never received any benefit until I commenced taking your medicine. I am now well and able to do my own work. I wish every woman who was suffering as I was would send for one of your books on Gynaecology. It is a God-send to suffering women. May God bless you and spare you many years to relieve women who are suffering as I was. I am anxious for every woman who is suffering as I was to know what your medicine did for me.

There are some very peculiar circumstances connected with the attempt to hold up the St. Louis and Chicago express on the Chicago & Alton railroad last Wednesday night, as the story is told. The train cago, it is ahead of the like record in recent years. There is a moderate improvement of business in the South, Alabama having raised the quarantine against Georgia cities, and Central and Northern Texas points having resumed commercial relations with Galveston. Planters continue to hold cotton, which delays collections.

CITY'S NATIONAL BANKS IN MAGNIF-ICENT SHAPE.

A GREAT FINANCIAL CENTER.

BIGGEST BANK IN AMERICA OUTSIDE OF TWO CITIES.

only One Bank in Chicago and Some in New York Rank Ahead of the National Bank of Commerce—Banks' Statements.

While it has been known in a general way that the banking interest here for the past three months had participated in the revival of business and made handsome gains, none was prepared for the remarkable statement of the national banks, drawn out by a call from the comptroller of the currency under date of October 5.

No city, East or West, of its size can begin to make such a showing of its banking interest as Kansas City now presents to the business world. While the number of national banks now in existence is the smallest for some years, being only six, against ten at the time of the panic of 1893, there has never before been the time when there was near the money in their vaults as now. In the five national banks, whose statements have been published, there appears an increase in deposits of $5,593,433 since July, and in cash and exchange an ncrease of $3,420,842, in loans of $2,199,512. and in resources $5,642,247-and these figures are without the Interstate National bank whose statement has not been published whose statement has not been published, but which in July had deposits of $2,159,850, cash and exchange $1,119,376, loans $2,208,641, and total resources of $3,418,490.

Not only has Kansas City increased its prestige wonderfully in a general way as a money center, but it now has in the National Bank of Commerce the biggest banking institution in the whole country, outside of one bank in Chicago and about a dozen banks in New York city. Since the last statement, July 23, this bank's deposits have increased from $11,648,179 to $15,-117,663. The statements of the several banks show:

Mr. Butterworth's Tale of Belgium's "State Insane Town" Not All Fiction.

Considerable interest and speculation have been called out by Mr. Hezekiah Butterworth's story in the current Harper's, entitled, "A Strange Story of Gheel." The article is classed as fiction in the magazine, and several people have already asked whether the locality is imaginary or only the narrative's incident. This historic old Belgian city, though as famous as Lourdes, throughout Europe, is so little known on this side of the water that half the readers of Mr. Butterworth's tale have questioned its existence outside of the brain of the author. It was several years ago that the author of the brain of the author,

It was several years ago that the author, while traveling on the Continent, paid his first visit to Gheel. This quaint relic of the dark ages is situated in the "Campins," a fertile oasis in the desolated desert of sand dunes which skirt the North sea.

As long ago as the days of Gog and Magog it was famous for its cures, and the harbaric kings of old Ireland knew of the wondrous miracles wrought at the shrine of St. Dymphnea. For more than a thousand years a magnificent church, nearly as grand as the cathedral at Cologne, has marked the spot. Each year those who have been cured pour in votive offerings of untold value. Long since the shrine became historic a second church, almost as inspiring as the older one, was erected in another quarter of the town.

"I had often wished," said Mr. Butterworth, "to embody some facts about the cures of Gheel in an article, but in order that more people might read it, I wrote it in story form.

"The present organization of the town is an experiment of the Belgian government in the treatment of the insane. The whole idea is the outcome of the experiments and writings, early in the present century, of Philippe Pinel, the first physician to advance the idea that the insane should not be treated like criminals.

"His method of treatment was to permit his patients to be almost utterly without restraint and to put his worst cases under the care of convalescents who had been afflicted with hallucinations of the same sort. This arrangement gives hope to one patient and a sense of responsibility to the other which could be created in no other way.

"About fifteen years ago, when the Bel-

"About fifteen years ago, when the Belgian government was casting about for a place suitable for its experiment, it decided upon Gheel, believing that the rich traditions, the daily cures and the delightful climate of that town would conspire strongly to favor the objects of the experiment. And so it proved. I call it hypnotism or faith cure. When a patient is sent there he is told that he is going to get well. He sees other men in the same condition improving daily; he becomes saturated with tales of marvelous cures; the minds of others react upon his own and in the majority of cases he recovers his reason.

minds of others react upon his own and in the majority of cases he recovers his reason.

"For a week after his arrival he is kept indoors under the pretext that the doctors must have a chance to study his case. After that, he is permitted to come and go as he will. Until recently this freedom was given even to patients with homicidal tendencies. No harm ever followed. There seems to be something in the air which makes even the most violent men harmless. When it is not thought that one convalescent can control a patient, two or three are assigned to him, and their combined wills usually suffice to control that of the insane man.

"The patients are boarded in twos in the thatched cottages of the crofters, or small farmers. All appearances of a hospital are studiously avoided. The board furnished is of the most nourishing food, consisting of eggs, milk, fruit and cercals. Men and women alike are kept much in the open air, and so, under these ideal surroundings, they rapidly recover their normai reason.

"This story of Lucia Van Ness is, in the main, true. I gave it to the public as pure fiction, but as a matter of fact, it is two true stories woven into one. In Switzerland I heard the pitiful tale of the young bride who became insane on her wedding day. Later I was told of another women who, losing her reason, began by hating and ended by forgetting her devoted husband. At Gheel she recovered her memory and remarried her husband, as told in my story. I combined these two tales and transferred them to Gheel in order that I might have a chance to describe the Belgian method of treating the insane. The story of the old Irish king and the tragic death of his beautiful daughter, Dymphnea, I purposely concealed."

Mr. Butterworth is a Gheel enthusiast, and said without hesitation that if one of

The Skyro sailed from Cartagena, bound for London, with a valuable cargo, including bar silver, valued at 145,000. All went well until approaching Cape Finisterre in foggy weather, when the vessel struck on the Mexiddo reef, but passed over, and went down in deep water within twenty minutes, and about two miles off the coast. An expedition went out in the same year, but was unable to secure the treasure.

Last year another effort was made, with more powerful diving apparatus, and resulted in fifty-nine bars being recovered. The working depth for the diver was never less than 28½ fathoms—171 feet—and it frequently exceeded this.

To obtain these bars it was found necessary to blow away the deck with dynamite, which the diver did only after great difficulty, owing to the boisterous state of the weather. Work was compulsorily suspended in October, but again resumed this summer, with satisfactory results.

some time a party of New Yorkers have been endeavoring to secure in Montreal letters patent for the formation of the Canadian Athletic Association, its object being to give exhibitions of an athletic character including boxing.

Such letters were issued last week by the lieutenant governor in council, but before signing the papers the clause relating to boxing exhibitions was stricken out, and any attempt to bring off a fight under this charter will be severely punished. There is a clause in the Canadian laws permitting glove contests, but officers of the law are always present at such affairs and stop the exhibition when the slightest brutality is shown.

GILBERT DEFEATED ELLIOTT

THE IOWAN WINS THE PURSE AND CUP BY ONE BIRD.

Elliott Killed 94 Birds Out of a Pos sible 100 to Gilbert's 95-Highest Run of Straight Kills Was Made by Elliott.

Fred Gilbert, of Spirit Lake, Ia., defeated J. A. R. Elliott, of this city, by the narrow margin of one bird in the pigeon shooting match at Exposition park yesterday afternoon. He killed ninety-five birds out of possible 100, to Mr. Elliott's ninety-four. The contest was for a purse of $200 and the Kansas City Star cup. The loser immediately challenged the wigner to another match, which will probably take place of lowa soil.

The day lacked considerable of being ideal for shooting, as a pretty stiff breeze blew from the northwest across the traps. The match was witnessed by about 1,500 people, who impartially applauded the work of both men. It was a peculiarly tempered crowd in that the misses of the contestants were more vigorously applauded than some of their most difficult shots. The birds were fairly strong filers. American association rules governed the match, regulation rise and boundary. Nobody expected a record-breaking match yesterday owing to the weather conditions, the general opinion being that the scores would range between ninety and ninety-six. Mr. Elliott was the first to step up to the traps, and he brought down his bird only after using the second shell. He used a '97 model Winchester, while Mr. Gilbert used an L. C.
Smith double-barreled weapon, both American makes. Mr. Elliott killed thirty of his ninety-four birds with one shell, while Mr.
Gilbert scored but twenty-seven with one barrel.

The luck or ill-livek that goes with all crowd in that the misses of the contestican makes. Mr. Elliott killed thirty of his ninety-four birds with one shell, while Mr. Gilbert scored but twenty-seven with one barrel.

The luck or ill-luck that goes with all contests of skill or chance was about equally divided. In the first twenty-five birds of Mr. Elliott's he scored on 22, three of them falling dead out of bounds. Gilbert scored twenty-four birds in his first 25, his fifth bird being a clean miss. Elliott killed his second and third twenty-fives straight, and as he had killed the last four in his first twenty-five, he registered fifty-four straight kills, the first bird of his final twenty-five falling dead out of bounds. Gilbert's best record was forty-eight straight kills, toppling over the final seven of his second twenty-five, scoring clean on his third quarter of a hundred and killing sixteen straight on his final twenty-five.

The race was close and exciting up to the conclusion, and but for an easy miss on his ninety-third bird Elliott would have tled up the score. The bird was an outgoing right quarterer that raised directly above the trap. As Gilbert had missed on his ninety-second bird the score was a te, but Elliott's miss on the next chance lost him the opportunity to keep on a level with his opponent. Both men killed straight out after this, and when the last bird was killed by Gilbert, which gave,him the purse and the trophy, the sportsmen flocked onto the grounds and congratulated the winner. There was a pretty fair sprinking of sportsmen in the crowd at the traps. Among those present were: E. S. Rice, of the Dupont Powder Company: "Uncle John" Watson, J. H. Robbins, editor of the Sportsman's Review, and C. P. Richards, gun editor of the American Field, all of Chicago. Among the well known sportsmen of the Missouri valley who were in attendance were: Lew Ehrhardt, of Atchison: Messrs. EXPOSITION PARK RACES. The Twenty Day Meet Will Begin

That Track This After-

There is a promising card of entries for to-day's opening of the fall race meeting this afternoon. There should be some good sport during the twenty days' racing The five races of the day are well balanced, offering all sorts of chances to pick winners, and each event should be hotly contested from start to finish. Six carloads of horses from St. Louis and Chi-cago, including some first-class horses, and two carloads from Detroit, will arrive at the track early in the week.
